

Newsletter

"Weekly news, to keep us all connected."

Taqramiut
Nipingat
Incorporated
March 29th 2005

Inside this issue:

This week on Nunavimuit

POV Snow Festival

Meetings

Vacation

For more information:

Please contact

Julie Grenier

jgrenier@taqramiut.qc.ca

514.631.1394

Featuring this week on Nunavimuit: Riddu Riddu Part 3; Nunavik's presence

Tune in to Nunavimuit on APTN this week to watch Riddu Riddu Part 3, Nunavik's Presence.

From one land to another, separated by thousands of miles. Native people come together to share, compare but most of all to learn from each other. To discover that although great distances may separate them, they have so many similarities.

Nunavik has the opportunity to showcase their talents through throat singing, soapstone carving, print-making and fashion but this is just a small sampling of what you will see at the festival. What else do you sample here?? Food – mmmmm, traditional Inuit food, the best kind. This program shows only the highlights of their voyage to the other side of the planet. Sharing all they have with whomever will stop and listen, being able to teach some basics of their craft. Nunavik has so much to offer and the world is their oyster.

You could watch Nunavimuit every Tuesday at 10:00 AM, 3:00 PM and 6:30 PM. You could also catch a re-run of every Tuesday's episode on Thursdays of the same week, at 8:00 PM.

Puvirnitug Snow Festival

The Puvirnitug Snow Festival is now over, and all is well. Everything ran smoothly for both the television and radio crews, and everyone has now made it back safely to their respective communities.

Meetings

Julie Grenier will be keeping busy with meetings this week. On Tuesday, March 29th, she has a lunch meeting with Nicolas Gateff and Antoine Monier from Soleica.

On Wednesday, March 30th, she will be attending a breakfast conference for the Montreal-West Island employers, from 7:30 to 12:00.

Vacation

Eva Sakiagak Audlaluk is on vacation today, but she will be back in the office on Wednesday.